Page 2: Experiment Instructions

Please imagine the following situation for the experiment of this study:

A few weeks ago, you attended a job fair at which different established companies presented themselves. Now you reflect on the companies you saw at the fair and how attractive you found them as potential employers. However, you only remember a few facts about each of the companies: their size, their geographic location and their type of ownership.

In the following you will be presented with different companies described by these three attributes and questions to answer about each of them. You will be asked to evaluate a total of four companies with the same questions for each. Please read the description of each company carefully and answer the questions below only based on the information given there.
