NUTS ("Nomenclature of Statistical Territorial Units") is a hierarchical system for dividing up the economic territory of the European Union. It was introduced by Eurostat more than 30 years ago in order to provide a single uniform breakdown of territorial units for the production of regional statistics. NUTS 1 especially contains the major socio-economic regions for analyzing regional Community problems. It subdivides the European Union by now into 97 regions, whereas in Germany there are equivalent to the German Federal States 16 regions.

The procedure of carrying forward and imputation is identical to that for HGSIZE. In the regression model the same covariates are used with the exception of HGROOM which is replaced with HGSIZE (size of the housing unit in square meters). In case information on HGSIZE is missing, a first imputation was done excluding HGSIZE. In case information for HGSIZE exists, these values were replaced with values obtained from a second imputation including HGSIZE as a covariate.

In case HGROOM is imputed, the flag variable HGFROOM takes the value “1”.

This information is not assessed in the Questionnaire of the SOEP Innovation Sample from 2012 on, therefore this variable is not generated for these years and coded to “-5” (not contained in questionnaire).

Because detailed information on heating costs is not assessed in the Questionnaire of the SOEP Innovation Sample, in the years 2011 and 2012 HGRENT was generated by simply duplicating respondents' answers on the amount of monthly rent from the H dataset.

Coded as “1” if the household does not pay rent; e.g., if living space is provided by relatives at no cost. Note that in these cases, the information on gross cold rent (HGRENT), heating costs (HGHEAT) and utilities (HGUTIL) is coded “-2” (“not applicable”). Information is not carried forward.

Information was collected in wave BA (2010) for the first time. The procedure of imputation is identical to that for HGHEAT. In the regression model the same covariates are used.

In case HGELECTR is imputed, the flag variable HGFELECTR takes the value "1". In the year 2011, no imputation of HGELECTR was conducted.

This information is not assessed in the Questionnaire of the SOEP Innovation Sample from 2012 on, therefore this variable is not generated for these years and coded to "-5" (not contained in questionnaire).

For old households at their old address, data is carried forward for up to two waves. For new households in SOEP and for old households that have moved, the variable is based on newly collected data. In case the information is missing and an old household has moved that year or the previous year, HGMOVEYR is given the value of the year of the respective wave. The carrying forward of data entails the possibility that the year of moving into the new dwelling may lie before the year of birth of the oldest household member.

HGRENT, HGUTIL and HGHEAT are generated variables on the housing cost of households in rental properties. HGRENT is a measure of the gross rent including utility costs (HGUTIL) and excluding heating costs (HGHEAT).

For further information on HGRENT, HGUTIL and HGHEAT please see the corresponding SOEP HGEN documentation.

In the following cases the information on HGSIZE is still missing:

- The information could not be carried forward (e.g. due to the household moving)
- A new household did not provide information

- The size of the housing unit changed, but no new information was provided
- The given value was found to be implausible.

Missing cases in 2009 and 2010 were imputed using a regression model with the following independent variables:

- Number of rooms larger than 6 square meters (see variable HGROOM)
- Size of the household (HHGR)
- Status of ownership (HGOWNER)
- Year house was constructed (HGCNSTYR)
- Type of building (WUM1)
- Adequacy of living space in housing unit (HGSEVAL)
- SOEP Subsample (HSAMPLE)
- Dummy variable coded “1” for households living in Eastern Germany

The results of these imputations are also carried forward for up to two waves unless new information is provided in later waves.

In case HGFSIZE is imputed, the flag variable HGFSIZE takes the value “1”.

The number of missing cases from 2011 on was reduced by carrying on the information from previous years, unless there was a relocation of the household. Note the possibility of a change in the size of the housing unit even when no relocation happened. We estimate that there was a (undetected) change in size of the housing unit for around 3% of the households that did not relocate.

HGFRENT indicates that at least one of the components of HGRENT (HGUTIL or HGHEAT) or HGRENT itself is imputed. It is only given positive values if the respective imputed component is part of HGRENT.

"1": The household did not provide information on the amount of HGRENT, thus the basic value of HGRENT is imputed.

"2": Utility costs are imputed and had to be added to the amount of rent stated to obtain the target measure of gross HGRENT.

"3": Heating costs are imputed and had to be deducted from the amount of rent stated to obtain the target measure of gross HGRENT excluding heating costs.

This variable contains information, whether the referring variable has been imputed. If the referring information has not been assessed in the questionnaire, this flag also contains "-5" (not contained in questionnaire).

Generated variable created by combining the relationships of all persons living in the household to the head of household (Variable $STELL in the file PBRUTTO) at the time of the survey.

From 2009 onwards, the data production process switched to a standardized procedure for all waves to ensure longitudinal consistency, resulting in minor changes compared with older distributions.

HGTYP1HH is an aggregation of HGTYP2HH (first column of the two-digit code). Single households are differentiated in HGTYP2HH according to both gender and age.

Due to a slightly modified $STELL variable in the file PBRUTTO, the generation syntax of HG Typ1HH and HG Typ2HH needed to be updated in the year 2011.

This variable is based on the current monthly net household income asked for directly in the household questionnaire (“screener”). Since everyone in SOEP over the age of 16 is also interviewed personally, this income can be calculated based on the current individual monthly incomes of all household members. Possible underestimation in “screener” can thus be assessed and corrected. However, in the case of item-nonresponse on the original screener, the procedure is only used for households surveyed completely, without item-non-response on the variables in question.

For personal income, we use monthly net income (from dependent employment and self-employment), extra earnings, pensions, widow’s pensions, unemployment benefits or relief, maintenance payments, early retirement payments, maternity benefits, BaFoeG (state higher education grants), military or civil service pay, compulsory child support, as well as other forms of support from the P files. Civil servants’ pensions income is taxed at the flat rate of 20% and multiple entries on the use of employment office services are corrected for by calculating a median value. We add all the individual incomes of all interviewed household members, also adding to this sum all income from the household context (housing subsidies, child benefits, welfare and home nursing subsidies, social assistance; since 2005 also Unemployment Benefit II (“ALG II”) or Social Benefit).

When no answer was provided on net household income, we use the net household income calculated as described above, under the condition that all household members gave valid answers. If the net household income generated in this way is higher than the household income stated in the questionnaire, we correct the value upwards. When no answer was given for the different components of income, we set the value of the particular component at zero. HGAHINC was not generated from 2011 on.
